The act of the General Assembly of 1707, that I have now transcribed, as will b perceived, transfers to the several towns of cities in Rhode-Island the entire control of all the public waters within their respective territories, so far as the shore is concerned, excepting, as I suppose, the rig t to grant to a corporate body for the use of the entire public, such as a railroad, or canal, or any other public highway, individual owners nevertheless atways having recourse to bodies to when grants are thus made for any damages that they thereby sestain. It was by the authority thus invested, that the Town Council of Newport deeded to the persons who applied to them for the various vater lots of which they became the possessors, and which from their original grant have been held firmly bound to them their heirs, and assigns, until tids day The Long-Wharf is a specimen of the au thority and the tenure of their action. I subjoin a copy of the deed that was given at that time; simply stating previously, that the necessity of a connecting road bewieen the centre of the Town and Gravelly Point, had long been very seriously felt, as is set forth in the petition of the petitioners; viz., and that " (ride and commerce in general? would be greatly benefitted thereby. And also that " the granted lower part of said wharf will be commodious for the landing of large vessels which will greatly tend, &c. Town Records B. 2; Pages 428-34. (I put in italics such words as are defaced on the ancient records, they being understood from the peti.ion.)

. At a Quarterly Meeting of the Irecmen of the town of Newpork in the Colony of Rhode Island &c., not the first Wednesday (th) third day of) October, A. D., 1789whereas, Henry Collins, Samuel Rodman, Henry Bull, Clarke Rodman, Josph Jacobs Samuel Wickham, William Read, Thomas Potter, Nathaniel Coddington, and Samuel Collins, all of Newport aforesaid, in behalf of themselves and their associates, have potitioned this meeting for a grant of a space of land between the land of Catharme Sheffield and the land of Benjamin Durfey, for a whart with that width over to the Point, and from thence westerly into the salt water, &c., including the Town wharf, they agreeing with the proprietors of said wharf &c.

This meeting having taken said petition into consideration, and being sensible of the advantages it will be to the Town in general, as also a great ornament to the same which will arise by and at the great expense of the netitioners and their associates.

Do Vote and Enact, and hereby grant convey and confirm unto the said Henry Collins, Samuel Rodman, Henry Bull, Clarko Rodman, Joseph Jacobs, Samue Wickinia, William Read, Thomas Potter, Nathaniel Codnington, and Samuel Collins and their associates, and to their heirs and assigns, to ever, all that piece or parcel of land in Newport aforesaid, called the Town whark with all the sance of land between the lands of Katharino Sheffield and the lands of Benjamin Durfey, and extending from Thames street wostward across the cave or Flats to the Sandy Point, called Eastern's Point, and across the Point, Eight Hundred feet westward into the water towards Goat Island from low water mark together with the priviliges of all the right. the said town of Newport hath in the water on the North and South side forty-five feet in width on each side, they the said Petitioners, and their associates, agreeing with the proprietors of the said Town-wharf, and those persons who own the lots on Sundy Point, through which the premises will extend, and as soon as they can with conveniuncy, to build on the premises, a good and substantial whart of Frity feet wide, extending from Thames street to the limits aloresaid, leaving a Channel for the passage of boats into the Cove, with a good convenient Draw Bridge, and always leaving thirty feet in width of the said wharf on the south side, free and clear of buildings and other incumbrances, for the better landing of all sorts of wood, lumber &c., for the benefit of the inhabitants according to the grant in the year 1702, excepting the building of Cranes &c., for the conveniency of unloading yessels &c. To have and to hold all the above granted premises, with all and singular the rights, profits, privileges and appertanances to the same belonging, or in any wise appertaning upon the conditions above specified to them the said Henry Colins, Samuel Rodman, Henry Bull, Clarke Redman, Joseph Jacobs, Samuel Wickham, William Read, Thomas Potter, Nathaniel Coddington and Samuel Collins and their associates, and to their heirs and assigns, forever.

August, on "Life Among the Mormons," was evidently written by a lady, and probably by the wife of an American officer stationed at Utah. She examined the working of polygamy with a sharp eye. She WAYS .

"Directly opposito resides Brother Wake man, an exemplary Mormon of two wives and a host of children. He lives in a wellbuilt adobe house, but there is around the establishment an appearance of utter shiftlesaness; the broken windows are stuffed with rags, the doorway and steps look as though one might stick fast in trying to pass them, and the street fences are half down. Scarce a day passes that does not exhibit zonielevidence of internal commotion, like a volcanic eruption, in this domicile, in one form or another. At one time three or four of the children, and one of the mothers, will be seen hurrying out, followed by the worthy brother, in hot purmit, with threatning gestures and high voices, from the screaming treble of the youngsters to the harsh bass of the sire. At another time a number of children will acream forth, pursued by one of the women, flourishing a broomstick."

Of another family she writes: " I have already managed to obtain from one of these miserable creatures a sad picture of the state of affairs in her household. There are three wives in the lamily, who being in a regular strife for the mastery. and having no common interest, everything is out of joint. At first I found it difficult to approach her, but, by a little tact, I overcame her reserve; and the fount once unscaled, she poured forth her troubles. She is a wretched specimen of a woman, poorly dressed, poorly led, and exhibits a sense of degradation. In this particular case, the first wife had revenged herself to some extent, by managing to make drudges of the other two."

She gives an account of one young man who married his two wives on the same day, so that neither could claim precedence of the other. She thinks the Mormons a very degraded people.
